Despite a warning not to enter a saloon, A. H. Gray, of Pawney, La., stepped upon the steel door sill and was electrocuted. Death was instantaneous. A heavily charged electric wire had fallen upon the building in which the saloon was located, charging the metal coping and steel front which connected with the door plate.

After prayer meeting Wednesday night at the First Baptist church, Rev. C. M. Thompson baptized two new members, Mr. Will Kimmons and Mrs. A. E. Mullins. The revival meeting at that church will begin Sunday, January 5th, with Rev. J. W. Porter, of Lexington, doing the preaching.

SHOT DOWN ON STREET

R. B. Morgan, Colored, Gets a Bullet Through His Body.

WOUND MAY PROVE FATAL.

Has Served a Term in Penitentiary For Killing a White Man.

Shortly after noon Thursday R. B. Morgan, colored, was shot on Sixth street, in front of W. H. Cobb & Co.'s saloon. He was walking along the street when a man met him and so Morgan says, presented a pistol to his breast and fired. Morgan made a quick movement and the bullet missed his heart and crashed through his body a little to the left of the left nipple and was cut out under the left shoulder blade.

Morgan is a son of Peter Morgan and was recently released from the penitentiary, having served a short term for killing James Morris, a white man, several years ago, over a card game. A petition was being circulated last week asking Gov. McCreary to restore him to citizenship.

Morgan, when taken to a physician after being shot, said he recognized the man who shot him, but refused to say who it was.

TAKING STOCK.

Many Merchants are Busy Ascertaining What Stock is On Hand.

The Planters Hardware Co., the Forbes Mfg. Co. and many others are now busy invoicing and will ascertain by the beginning of the new year what their stock carried over will amount to. It always takes a week's hard work for the Forbes Manufacturing Co. to get through with this annual job, but making extensions and totaling is quite a contract of itself and is not often completed for several days after the new year's business opens up.

2-YEAR-OLD BOY

Badly Burned While Playing With Fireworks.

Wednesday a little boy, of only two years of age, was badly burned while playing with fireworks with several other children, at the home of Mr. John Charlton, on Wallace Avenue. The little boy is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Flaherty. The older children were in an upper room having a good time and the burned boy undertook to light a sparker when his clothing caught fire. Mrs. Flaherty was the first to get to her child after the other two children had given the alarm and found the little fellow in flames. With the assistance of an uncle of the boy the burning clothing was torn from his body but nearly every part of his body was burned.

OTHER PROPOSALS ARE MADE

Turkey is Still Asking That Reported Atrocities Be Investigated.

Constantinople, Dec. 27.—The porte has telegraphed to Recond Pasha at London counter proposals, as decided upon by the council of ministers. The exact nature of the proposals have not been divulged, but the official view of the situation still is hopeful.

The Turkish press is unanimous in declaring that the allies' conditions are not acceptable, and that the Turkish delegates were not sent to London to commit suicide.

The porte has repeated to the powers the demand made a month ago for a consular inquiry respecting the atrocities alleged to have been committed by the allies in the occupied territory.

RETURNS TO SOUTH.

Dr. Jenkins Will Become Pastor of Church at Spartanburg, S. C.

Louisville, Ky., Dec. 27.—The Rev. Millard A. Jenkins has resigned as supply pastor of the Twenty-second and Walnut streets Baptist church. In a few weeks he will go to Spartanburg, S. C., to become pastor of Southside Baptist church there.

The Rev. Mr. Jenkins agreed to fill the pulpit of the Twenty-second and Walnut streets church after the resignation of the Rev. M. P. Hunt for six months to give the congregation time to secure a pastor to fill the pulpit permanently. He is making the change to South Carolina because he has been advised that the climate there will agree with him.

DANCE AT THE LATHAM.

New Dining Room Will be Opened to The Public Sunday.

Electricians and others were quite busy Thursday putting the finishing touches to the new dining room of Hotel Latham. Metcalfe, the florist, was also busy with the floral decorations, and after a strenuous day with all every detail was completed for the opening dance Thursday night, given by the young men of the city.

The room was beautifully lighted, the floor was in fine condition and the scores of young people who participated "tripped the light fantastic" until the wee sma' hours of morning. Lebkuecher's splendid orchestra of eight pieces furnished the music. There were many older persons present to see the new room by night and watch the younger ones as they gracefully glided over the floor in the maze of the dance.

The Messrs. Noe say that they will throw open the doors of their new dining room to the public tomorrow. They have been at heavy expense in putting the room on the first floor and are justly proud of the change made. The entrance is from the lobby through large folding doors. The old room will be converted into guest chambers.

Railroads of State to Pay on the Same Amount as Last Year.

ON TANGIBLE PROPERTY.

Chairman Lawrence Finn Overruled by Commissioners Klair and Garrett.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 27.—The Railroad Commission decided to assess the tangible property of all the Kentucky railroads at the same figures they were assessed last year, and the assessment will be certified at once to the Auditor, and through him to the county and city officials.

W. F. Klair, of Lexington, and Green Garrett, of Winchester, voted to make the assessments the same as last year, but Lawrence Finn, of Franklin, chairman of the commission, refused to concur with Klair and Garrett in their vote, contending for a substantial increase in the assessment of the tangible property.

It was agreed that the commissioners would meet here January 8 to complete the details of the assessment.

Chairman Finn will be present and filed a protest against a majority opinion of the commission.

STATED SUPPLY.

Rev. Charles L. Nourse Called to First Presbyterian Church.

The session of the First Presbyterian church met last Wednesday night, after prayer meeting, and extended a call to Rev. Charles L. Nourse to become the stated supply of that church. Mr. Nourse accepted the call and will continue to preach until the meeting of Princeton Presbytery in April. This is as far as the board of Elders can go without action of Presbytery.

Mr. Nourse has been serving the church most acceptably since Rev. E. B. Landis resigned his pastorate.

The negro occupies a cell in the death house at the penitentiary, but is confident that he will be granted a new trial.

CHARGE OF BRIBERY

Is Probed By Investigating Committee of the Council.

WILL MEET AGAIN TO-NIGHT

To Formulate a Report to be Submitted to the Council

The investigating committee named by the council to inquire into charges of bribery held a meeting Thursday night, the following councilmen present: W. S. Harned, chairman; J. J. Metcalfe, W. H. Draper, F. W. Dabney and H. L. Haydon.

Testimony was heard in regard to the ballot taken to nominate policemen, Frank King acting as official reporter. Councilmen Metcalfe, Draper, Bradley and Harned each testified that they voted for both Means and Keach.

Mr. Harned said Mr. Draper's ballot was on a printed form and Hadden's name was erased and Means' written with a pencil to one side in small letters that were not very plain. Mr. Draper described his ballot in the same way. All said they saw the ballots after they were picked up from the floor, after the council adjourned and Mr. Metcalfe said he then burned them up, thinking the affair was over.

Mayor Mescham testified that he read the names from the ballots one by one and was unable to say how many votes any one got. He omitted or changed no names that he saw, but read them as they appeared to him and passed the ballots over to the clerk.

Clerk Tibbs testified that he added up the ballots as called and announced the results correctly, Means and Keach each having 3 votes.

On a subsequent ballot Keach got 4 and was declared nominated, after which the 10 men nominated were elected by viva voce vote.

The Bribery Charge.

On the bribery charge Alfred Means said he gave $10 to Dr. Bradley to be used as part of a fund he was told would elect him and K. H. Keach to places on the Police force. He described in detail how he afterwards got a $10 bill back from Dr. Bradley. A. M. Coleman stated that he saw the money returned to Means by Dr. Bradley.

Dr. Bradley said Mr. Means handed him $10 to give to Mr. Jno. W. Richards and that he did so within 20 minutes and the day after the election Mr. Richards gave him $10 to return to Mr. Means, which he returned. He knew of no bribery and did not ask what use was to be made of the money.

Jno. W. Richards said Dr. Bradley brought him the $10 as stated, that he had told Mr. Means that it might be needed for legitimate expenses in his race and that after the election he gave the bill to Dr. Bradley to return to Mr. Means. He said he made no effort to use it.

Alvin H. Clark said he was applied to by Mr. Means to see about getting his money back and that he sent a man to see Dr. Bradley and the money was promptly returned.

This closed the testimony and the committee adjourned until to-night to formulate its report.

A ball of fire from a Roman candle started a fire in the Wickliffe building, at Wickliffe, early Thursday morning that resulted in a total loss of approximately $20,000, covered by about $10,000 insurance.

The Magazine

In the Strand Magazine for January Rider Haggard continues his story of Egyptian exploration and romance under the title of "Smith and the Pharaohs." It is as weird and wonderful as anything this writer has yet given us. Excellent short fiction is supplied by E. M. Jameson, "Ole Luk-Oie," C. C. Andrews, Pleydell North, E. Nesbit and other writers. The articles are numerous and interesting. David Devant, the famous conjurer, relates his "Experiences" and incidentally mentions that his first engagement brought him in five dollars while ten years later he received the offer of $90,000 for a year's contract. Lina Cavalieri, Sarah Bernhardt, and others reveal the secrets of perpetual youth.

The January Woman's Home Companion contains a really notable report of the militant campaign for women suffrage that is going on in England. It gives the reader a clear and interesting idea of the violence of the struggle—quite a different picture from that afforded in our country where ten out of forty-eight states have granted woman suffrage peacefully.

Another splendid contribution to the January Companion is entitled "Behind The Scenes At The Bargain Sale," in which the author gives a detailed and highly entertaining account of the many interesting phenomena that enter into the fixing of prices of goods that, particularly, buy at sales.

The January American Magazine contains the first chapter of "Forty Years Of It," by Brand Whitlock, Mayor of Toledo, Ohio. The first chapter is entitled "A Boy and His Grandfather," and includes as beautiful a new true Lincoln story as has been published in many a day. It is a story of something that Abraham Lincoln said and did to Brand Whitlock's grandfather.

Another interesting contribution to the January American Magazine is the first chapter of "The Diary of a Cop," in which a policeman tells how he took the first steps in his development into a grafter.

A number of startling articles appear in this month's Wide World Magazine one of the most striking, perhaps, being by a resident of Queensland who describes how he and his companions indulged in "turtle-riding" which he assures us is a most novel and hilarious sport. The remarkable photographs which accompany the article clearly substantiate his statements. "Adrift on the Ice Floes" relates how two Lake Huron fishermen were driven out to sea on an ice-floe, and for fifty hours battled for life while brave men fought desperately to reach and rescue them.

George Wharton James tells the story of Jack London in the December National as it was never told before—one of the strongest papers that has ever been written concerning this popular writer, so Jack London says himself. It is liberally illustrated with photographs of the California author taken at various times during his short and eventful career. There are many anecdotes of London that have never appeared in print, and quotations from the author on his life, his habits and his work.

Shooting In Clarksville.

Duke Bowler, a motorman for the street railway company, was shot in Clarksville Thursday afternoon by Elwood Maveety's livery stable on Strawberry alley, a scalp wound being inflicted. A 38-calibre revolver was used and had it not been for the ball striking the heavy metal badge on Mr. Bowler's cap he would have probably been killed instantly. Maveety was arrested.

Bosworth in connection with a recent fire at the university, one charging setting fire to a building and the other arson.

Terrible Picture of Suffering.

Clinton, Ky.—Mrs. M. C. McElroy, in a letter from Clinton, writes: "For six years, I was a sufferer from female troubles. I could not eat, and could not stand on my feet, without pain. Three of the best doctors in the state said I was in a critical condition, and going down hill. I lost hope. After using Cardui for a week, I began to improve. Now I feel better than six for years." Fifty years of success, in actual practice, is positive proof that Cardui can always be relied on, for relieving female weakness and disease. Why not test it for yourself? Sold by all druggists.

OLD HOMESTEAD UP TO DATE

Creek Once Only a Swimming Hole Now Used to Do the Farm Chores.

Recently I made a visit to the old homestead and the scenes of my childhood, a writer in Farm and Fireside says. Oriskany Falls, N. Y., is now a thriving factory town, giving employment to many persons. The falls are utilized for various power purposes, including the lighting of the town. Oriskany creek, a little above the town, runs through the corner of one farm and is now made to do farm work. A small dam is thrown across a portion of the creek and a small power house is built at the side of the dam to cover the turbine wheel and the dynamo needed for creating electrical power for its various uses on the farm.

Wire connections are made to the barns, and the home, a short distance below the power house, is heated by electricity. The cows eat by electric light and are milked by electric power. I saw two machines, each milking two cows in about ten minutes. This plan of milking by machinery has been going on here for three years and has proved a success. They have about twenty cows. Electricity cuts the feed, runs the cream separator, churns the butter, cleans the carpets of the house by vacuum process, heats flatirons and runs the egg beater and sewing machine. This little creek, that sixty years ago seemed to run just to get rid of itself, is now doing farm work successfully.

"THE WHITE SQUAW"

A striking scene in "The White Squaw" which holds the boards at Holland's Opera House, Monday Night.

"The White Squaw," which will be the attraction at Holland's Opera House Dec. 30, is a play from the pen of Della Clarke and the story itself is one of intense human interest and heart appeal with romance and comedy happily interwoven. At the beginning of the play Neamata, a supposed Indian girl, is seen at the tepee of Michabo and Ampata, real Aborigines and believed by the girl to be her parents. In reality, Neamata is the child of white parents; she accompanied her father on a hunt one day, he was killed by a bear and she, little more than a baby, was rescued by the Indian. Neamata, who is dark and starry-eyed, had a sister, Octavia, with blue eyes and golden hair, but neither knows of the existence of the other.

 No. 2 white corn, $1.00.
 No. 2 mixed corn, $1.00.
 Winter wheat bran, $28.00.
 Chops, $5.00.

Yield of a Grain of Wheat.
 Very few people have an idea of the bounty of nature. A scientist of Cambridge, Eng., recently made an instructive experiment which showed that a single grain of wheat sown in June, produced 47 pounds 7 ounces. One acre of fairly good land will produce 30 bushels of wheat or 1,260 pounds of flour.

BLANKETS GROW ON TREES

Ecuador Indians Get Bed Coverings From Soft, Thick Bark of the Demajagua.

Blankets grow on trees in Ecuador, and while the idea of an all-wool, fresh from the forest, bed covering might give innumerable a backache to the child of civilization who likes to snuggle comfortably under several layers of down and wool, the natives find it all right, as in fact it is.

When an Ecuador Indian wants a blanket he hunts up a demajagua tree and cuts from it a five or six foot section of the peculiarly soft, thick bark. This is dampened and beaten until the flexibility of the sheet is much increased. The rough, gray exterior is next peeled off, and the sheet dried in the sun. The result is a blanket, soft, light and fairly warm, of an attractive cream color. It may be rolled into a compact bundle without hurt and with ordinary use will last for several years.

SHE DID NOT KNOW MOTHER

Teacher Received an Unexpected Reply From Parent of Boy She Had Punished.

Boys will be boys, except when they are little wretches, and Tommy was no exception.

He had broken one of the school rules, and the teacher told him to tell his mother about it, and also about the punishment he had received. This was foxy of teacher. She thought mother might thrash him again.

"Well, Tommy, did you tell your mother about your bad behavior yesterday, and how I punished you?" "Yes, miss," replied Tommy quickly.

"Well, what did your mother say?" was teacher's next question.

"Said she'd like to wring your neck," replied Tommy calmly.

HIGH SEAS.

The high seas embrace the open sea so far as it is not the exclusive property of any particular country. The rule of international law is that every country bordering on the sea has the exclusive sovereignty over such sea to the extent of three miles from its shores, but all beyond, not within three miles of some other country, is open or common to all countries. The part of the sea within three miles' distance is generally called the territorial sea of the particular country, or "mare clausum." The distinction has little effect on the right of navigation, but as regards fishing it is otherwise. Thus, foreign fishermen have no right to fish within three miles of the British coast without a license from the crown, or unless some special treaty has laid down other arrangements.

Unfortunate English.
 The general impression that the Englishman's life is rather prosy is supported by the statement of a Londoner who visited at Clay Center. He said he never had tasted fried chicken or strawberry shortcake, the two being unknown to the culinary art in his country.—Kansas City Star.

The Love Letters of a Confederate General

WE begin in the November issue a series of real love-letters written over fifty years ago by one of our national heroes to his sweetheart during the period of '61 to '65. This great general will go down to posterity as having accomplished one of the most brilliant feats of arms in the history of the world. He was as great a lover as he was a general, therefore these letters combine authentic history and exquisite romance. They sound a human note that no other work of literature has done in a decade; it is war, it is romance, it is history, it is literature. You simply can't afford to miss this wonderful series—an inside story of the Civil War now published for the first time and containing all the freshness of a contemporary happening. These letters will grip you hard, and hold your interest from first to last. Fill out the coupon and send it now before you forget it.

WAYS OF THE HONEY BIRD

It Leads Hunters to Bee Trees in Order to Obtain Its Favorite Diet.

In his "Journal of the Sporting Nomad" Mr. Studley gives an extraordinary account of the honey bird, advancing the theory that this strange little animal has consciously entered into a mutual benefit partnership with men. The honey bird attracts the attention of the hunters by a chattering sound and leads them direct to a hollow tree, wherein bees have swarmed, this being done, says the author, with the direct expectation of reward. "Cooe rewarded the bird by crumpling up some of the comb that had the young bees in it, then, scratching a little earth aside with his assagai, placed the broken comb there, lightly re-covering with earth. On many subsequent occasions I have followed these birds. All my boys were honey gluttons, especially Cooe; they evidently preferred the comb with the young bees within it, for they stuffed their mouths full of it—another proof that there is no accounting for taste.

"With reference to this bird, there is no sort of doubt that they deliberately call the wayfarer's attention by chattering. I have tried them by persistently ignoring their summons, sometimes owing to my not having time to follow it up, or to see what the bird would do in such a case. I found that they will track you for some time, but give it up as a bad business if you do not shortly take any notice of them.

"I take it that from time immemorial the natives have appreciated their feathered allies by leaving some of the comb as a reward, the birds being unable to obtain their favorite diet without human assistance. The trick has therefore almost become an hereditary instinct."

SMALL BOY SCORES

Grace—Who gave the bride away?
Helen—Her little brother. He announced to the assembled guests that she had false teeth and dyed her hair.

SCALES TURNED TO GOLD.

Sicily has a new industry, that of raising artificial goldfish and selling them by the hundred thousands to other countries. Small fish are caught or bred and put into a basin pregnant with chalk and various iron preparations. These make the skin of the fish impervious. Next the fish are bathed in the gold making preparation, the composition of which is a secret of the manufacturers. The strong fish survive this test. The survivors take on a golden hue first in the belly and then of the tail. Then follow other preparations and still others until the fish in the end is a perfect goldfish such as people pay big money for.

THE BOY.

"Johnny," said the mother as she vigorously washed the small boy's face with cold water, "didn't I tell you not to wash your face again? Here I've been scrubbing for half an hour and it won't come off."
"I—I don't," protested the small boy; "I ain't your little boy. I—ouch! Per—per—de colored lady's little boy."—The Home Journal

FEEDLE ARITHMETIC.

"I know how to put two and two together and make four," said the man who speaks in proverbs.
"Well," replied Mr. Dustin Star, "if four is all you can make out of two and two you had better keep out of finance."

STILL PRETENDING.

Tommy—I'm awfully sorry, mother, but I'm all out of gasoline.

AWFUL SECRET OF MURDERER

Daniel Webster's Vivid Portrayal of the Tortures That Beget the Guilty Soul.

Meantime, the guilty soul cannot keep its own secret. It is false to itself, or rather it feels an irresistible impulse of conscience to be true to itself. It labors under its guilty possession, and knows not what to do with it. The human heart was not made for the residence of such an inhabitant. It finds itself preyed on by a torment, which it dares not acknowledge to God nor man. A culture is devouring it, and it can ask no sympathy or assistance either from heaven or earth. The secret which the murderer possesses soon comes to possess him, and, like the evil spirits of which we read, it overcomes him and leads him whithersoever it will. He feels it beating at his heart, rising to his throat, and demanding disclosure. He thinks the whole world sees it in his face, reads it in his eyes, and almost hears the workings in the very silence of his thoughts. It has become his master. It betrays his discretion, it breaks down his courage, it conquers his prudence. When suspicious from without begin to embarrass him and the net of circumstance to entangle him, the fatal secret struggles with still greater violence to burst forth. It must be confessed, it will be confessed. There is no refuge from confession but suicide, and suicide is confession.—Daniel Webster.

GETTING CLOSE TO NATURE

Stretch Yourself Out Beneath an Oak and See if You Feel This Way.

Whether its branches show green against a dark-blue sky—gold where the sunlight touches them—whether its leaves show magenta in the light of the setting sun, or black and silver in the moonlight, there is no tree of them all to compare with the oak. All a summer's day you may lie stretched beneath it, so strong and so friendly, not to you only, but to all the little lives that swarm about its roots. All kinds of busy creatures—ants, spiders, daddy-longlegs—beloved of your childhood go scurrying over you on this errand and that, as unafraid, almost, as if you were dead. A feeling of kinship comes to you: a knowledge that all this life about you is oak and grass and insect, and the good dog lying at your feet, is but a little part of the ageless flux and reflux; soothingly as a cool hand on an aching head there comes to you the realization that soon fears, hates and loves forgotten, your tired body shall rest under the trees all the days and all the nights.—Atlantic Monthly.

WARM TRIBUTE.

It was in a little country town in the west of England, says the Bristol Mirror, and Mr. Goodman, excellent citizen and kind-hearted man, allowed himself, much against his own will, to be chosen mayor for the fourth time. After the event, he met Mr. Jones, one of his warmest admirers, who shook him heartily by the hand.

"I'm right sorry, Mr. Mayor," said the worthy man, "they've putten on you the trouble of officiating for another term, with all your many calls and worries of business; a far worse man would have suited us—but that was just the trouble. We couldn't find him—and it's my opinion as he ain't to be found."

WINE OF KIRK-KILISSEH.

Under its own name Kirk-Kilisch, now figuring in the war news, conveys nothing to the majority of Englishmen, but incognito, so to speak, it is very well known indeed. For Kirk-Kilisch is a place of vineyards, producing an excellent wine, which is eagerly purchased by French firms, shipped to Bordeaux and sold as the "best Bordeaux." And so it comes about that many snack lips over "Bordeaux" that is really Kirk-Kilisch.

ON THE PHONE.

Miss Holliday—Weren't you in when George called you on the phone and proposed?

Miss Winn—No; but when I did get in I returned his ring—New York Globe.

MUTUAL POLITENESS.

"Will it be any trouble for you to find out if Mrs. De Style is at home?"

"Not a bit. It won't take me a minute to run upstairs and ask her."

CHILDREN LEARN TO DRINK

Deplorable Condition in Schools of Moscow Revealed by Report of Consul Grove.

Remarkable statements concerning drunkenness among Russian schoolchildren are made by Consul H. M. Grove in his report on the trade of the Moscow district for 1911. It is admitted, he writes, that inebriety is very rapidly increasing among the school children in Russia in general and in Moscow and the Moscow provinces in particular. The Moscow town council recently made an inquiry into this subject, and it was then stated that of the adults who are addicted to drink it had been ascertained that 90 per cent. learned to drink while still at school. Out of 18,134 schoolboys in the Moscow province, from the ages of eight to thirteen years, 12,152 or 66 per cent., have taken to drink, and out of 10,404 girls of the same ages 4,733, or 45 per cent., also drink.

It was unanimously decided that lectures on the effects of drink should be given in all schools, and also that museums showing the effects of alcohol should be instituted. The teachers will receive special instruction with regard to alcoholism, so as to be able to instruct the children.—London Telegraph.

IT WOULD

Bronson—My mother-in-law has been spending the winter in Florida.
Johnson—Has the climate agreed with her?

Bronson—If it knows its business it has.

DRAIN ON OUR ENVIRONMENT.

Without environment there can be no life. Seventy per cent., at least, of the human body is made of pure water, the rest of gases and earths. These have all come from environment. Through the secret pores of the skin two pounds of water are exhaled daily from every healthy adult. The supply is kept up by environment. The environment is really an unappropriated part of ourselves. Definite proportions are continuously abstracted from it and added to the organism. And so long as the organism continues to grow, act, think, speak, work or perform any other function demanding a supply of energy, there is a constant simultaneous and proportionate drain upon its surroundings.—Drummond.

FOLLOWING ORDERS.

The motto above the great editor's desk read: "Accuracy, Accuracy, Accuracy."

Therefore the story turned in by the cub reporter contained this statement:

"Three thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine eyes were fixed upon the speaker."

"What means this fool statement?" asked the great editor, as he prepared to use the blue pencil.

"One man was blind in one eye," explained the cub.—Tit-Bits.

THE RESULT.

"I made that fellow swallow his words."

"Perhaps that is why I found him choking with anger."

ITS CLASS.

"What would you call these joy ride jags?"

"I would call them cases of auto intoxication."

UNIVERSITY OF PORTO RICO

When First Observed by Men It May Have Been Considered With South American.

Ethnologists have spent for thinking that Porto Rico and the adjoining islands may have been peopled from the valley of the Orinoco instead of from Yucatan. When first occupied by man Porto Rico may have been a part of a peninsula connected with South America. Its fauna and flora are of the South American type, and it contains relics of a forgotten race which show evidence of a high grade of culture. Few traces of these aborigines are now to be found except in the interior of the island. Among the curious remains are stone-inclosed plazas on which ceremonial dances were performed. The remains of carved idols and pottery show no small degree of skill and taste. No traces of stone buildings resembling those of the Mayas are found, but the houses are of the South American type. The manner of disposing of the dead also resembled that practiced in the valley of the Orinoco.—Harper's Weekly.

ZODIACAL LIGHT A MYSTERY

This Strange Illumination Is Thought to Be an Appendage of the Sun.

There is a strange light in the heavens appearing after sunset in the late winter and in spring and before sunrise in the autumn, but few persons in our latitudes have ever seen it. In the equatorial regions, however, and in certain parts of the tropics the zodiacal light appears with great splendor, and some remarkable views of it were obtained by a French expedition to the interior of the Sahara, undertaken for the purpose of studying the effects of the unclouded sun on the dry air of the desert.

The mysterious light, in the form of a vast triangle, rising high in the heavens, appeared nearly three times as bright as the Milky Way. Science has not entirely solved the problem of the origin of this light, but it is thought that it is an appendage of the sun.—Harper's Weekly.

NOT AN ILL WIND.

Apropos of the bumper crops of 1912, Secretary Wilson of the department of agriculture said in Washington:

"I heard a story the other day about a long-headed farmer. An auctioneer was to auction off his fields of standing grain, and the farmer said to him:

"I hope to goodness we have a good stiff breeze the day of the auction."

"A good stiff breeze? What use will that be?" asked the auctioneer.

"You must be green, young fellow," said the farmer. "Don't you know that, when grain's waving in the breeze, it looks a lot thicker—you see the same heads two and three times over."

Mrs. A.—Well, if it isn't Mrs. B. What a stranger you are! Why, it's quite five years since I saw you.

Mrs. B.—Yes. Why haven't you been to see me?

"In some cases, perhaps; but I know some little women who have succeeded fairly well at the business."—Youngstown Telegram.

SLIPPED.

"She had just been applying some cold cream when I tried to kiss her." "And what happened?" "I skidded and the kiss landed on her ear."

HASN'T BEEN MADE.

"Do you give your wife all the money she wants?" "There isn't that much."

ITS SORT.

"This is a mercenary garden." "What do you mean?" "It has so much moneywort and marygold."

ONE THING IN THEIR FAVOR.

"Four thousand years ago letters used to be engraved on bricks." "I'll bet no husband ever forgot to mail one of those letters."

REPTILES AND BATS

When First Observed by Men It May Have Been Considered With South American.

"You" said the manager of some slot machines in Yonkers. "You would hardly believe it, but the fact is that I've had more trouble with Sunday school children who try to 'beat' my machines than all the rest of the people put together. Day after day, since the first of the month, I found medals about the size of a cent among the coins in some machines. On one side were the words, 'Glenn While Ye May,' and on the other, 'Reward of Merit.' As most of these medals were found in the neighborhood of a certain church I concluded that they had been issued from its Sunday school. This surmise was correct. I asked the pastor to stop the medal habit, as if it were continued there was no way of telling how large the loss would be."

"How many medals did you take from the machines?" inquired a listener.

"Not quite three hundred," was the reply, "which showed that those Sunday school children cared more for chewing gum and caramels than they did for their rewards of merit."

NOT "SOUTHPAW" IN SMOKING

With his left hand he took pipe and tobacco from his pocket and with his right hand he felt for a match. He had none. His fellow idler at the other end of the park bench gave him a match and then let his own cigar go out in his astonishment at seeing his left-handed neighbor light his pipe with his right hand.

"That's funny," said he. "You are just about the most confirmed left-hander I ever met, yet for that little trick you use your right hand as if born to it."

"All left-handed people do," was the reply. "Just think over the list of your smoking acquaintances and see if you ever knew one who lit his pipe with his left hand. I'll bet you didn't. I never did, and I have numbered among my pipe-loving friends several men whose right hand seemed nearly helpless for everything else."

Preserving Carpenters' Tools. To keep tools from rusting, place a sponge moistened with coal oil in the tool chest.

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., contains no mercury, and is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. It is buying Hall's Catarrh Cure be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally and made in Toledo, Ohio, by F. J. Cheney & Co. Testimonials free.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure

[From a series of elaborate chemical tests.]

Comparative digestibility of food made with different baking powders.

An equal quantity of bread (biscuit) was made with each of two kinds of baking powder—cream of tartar and alum—and submitted separately to the action of the digestive fluid, each for the same length of time.

The percentage of the food digested is shown as follows:

Bread made with Royal Cream of Tartar Powder:

99 Per Cent. Digested

Bread made with alum powder:

67 Per Cent. Digested

Royal Baking Powder raised food is shown to be of greatly superior digestibility and healthfulness.

BLOUSE SLEEVE IS NOVEL

Genuine Comfort and Artistic Appearance Combined in a Recent French Importation.

There is a genuine comfort in the sleeve displayed in one of the recently imported French blouses. It is long, of course, for all Paris is wearing long sleeves with the same elated with which they adopted the short ones in the winter, and is tight from the elbow to the wrist. It fits comfortably into the armhole under the arm, but the upper portion runs right up over the shoulder to the collar. This affords an excellent opportunity to use a long length of lace, from three to four inches in width. The effect is very much like that of the popular raglan sleeve. The undersleeve may be of tulle, net, chiffon or nylon. The long lines of lace from collar to waist lend the kimono effect without any of the looseness of the kimono sleeve under the arm.

This sleeve is generally buttoned from the wrist to the elbow with tiny lace or silk buttons, for the glove-like snugness of the sleeve demands an opening. The ruffle at the wrist is often extended to the elbow, sometimes on the outer seam, again on the inner. To have a ruffle dainty, however, it must be fresh, and unless this can be accomplished it is advisable to omit it.

MUSLIN DRESS FOR GIRL

This is made in Swiss spotted muslin and has the skirt prettily trimmed with tucks, insertion and a lace edging.

LONG-SLEEVE MOST POPULAR

Variety is a Great One, But Most Frocks Are Made With Decidedly Long Ones.

Since evening dresses and little dance frocks are in a class by themselves and presupposes the use of long gloves, their sleeves are less apt to show any decided changes. There is so little of them, in the first place. But fashion has given her flat anent afternoon dresses and suits. Here are some of the changes:

In the majority of dresses the long sleeve prevails.

Most of the sleeves are set on the garment about three inches below the shoulder, thus giving a long shoulder line.

Some frocks show the entranced effect or separate large sleeve over the set-in sleeves that are on the underbodice.

Fullness is the keynote. There is given in ruffles at the elbow, in wired puffs on under-sleeves, in the general cut of a bishop or leg-of-mutton type.

Shirring is used on cuffs and on the under-arm seam to dispose of material in full lines.

Frills are shown on the edge of the sleeves and running up the outer seam. They also edge the upper and under lines of the cuffs.

Fullness is given to the sleeves of storm coats and evening wraps by having them cut in one with the garment, dispensing with armholes, yet departing from the kimono type by having decided cuffs and a fitted end at the wrists.

Hats From French Milliners.

Three unusually attractive hats embody many of the smart new ideas for fall. Among the most interesting of these is one from Suzanne, which is of the sailor type. Developed in black velvet, with a hand around the crown of golden wheat, which finishes in the center front with red velvet puppies, this flower trim has met with favor and is being worn by the fashionable Parisian. A small Suzanne hat is also shown, developed in black velvet, the feature of which is the soft fall of the brim. A band of white skunk is used around the head band of this hat, which is finished at the sides with a small American Beauty bud. A chic black plush sailor from Madame Dalany has marked distinction. White coqueux are placed gracefully at each side of the hat.—Millinery Trade Review.

Crape Draperies.

The young daughter's room may be made dainty nowadays at a small cost. Among the new draperies being shown are those of new cotton crepe. The goods can be laundered frequently and need not be ironed; the draperies can always be kept fresh and clean. The crepe is manufactured in lovely designs and in almost any color.

Not An Experiment.

Paint Lick, Ky.—Mrs. Mary Freeman, of this place, says: "Before I commenced to take Cardui, I suffered so much from womanly trouble, I was so weak that I was down in my bed nearly all the time. Cardui has done me more good than any medicine I ever took in my life. I can't possibly praise it too highly." You need not be afraid to take Cardui. It is no new experiment. For fifty years, it has been found to relieve headache, backache, and similar womanly troubles. Composed of gentle-acting, herb ingredients, Cardui builds up the strength, preventing much unnecessary pain. Try it for your troubles, to-day. Advertisement.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION OF THE NEW YORK WORLD

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

No Other Newspaper in the World Gives So Much at So Low a Price.

This is a time of great events and you will want the news accurately and promptly. The Democrats, for the first time in sixteen years, will have the Presidency and they will have the Presidency and they will also control both branches of Congress. The political news is sure to be of the most absorbing interest.

There is a great war in the Old World, and you may read of the extinction of the vast Turkish Empire in Europe, just as a few years ago you read how Spain lost her last foot of soil in America, after having ruled the empire of half the New World.

The World long since established a record for impartiality, and anybody can afford its thrice-a-week edition, which comes every other day in the week, except Sunday. It will be of particular value to you now. The Thrice-a-Week World abounds in other strong features: serial stories, humor, market's, cartoons; in fact, everything that is to be found in a first class daily.

THE THRICE-A-WEEK WORLD'S regular subscription price is only $1.00 per year, and this pays for 156 papers. We offer this unequalled newspaper and the Hopkinsville-Kentuckian together for one year for $2.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $3.00.

Eight men who deserve to be slapped on the face: He who despises a man of power; he who enters a house uninvited and unwelcome; he who gives orders in a house not his own; he who takes a seat above his position; he who speaks to one who does not listen to him; he who intrudes on the conversation of others; he who seeks favors from the ungenerous; and he who expects love from his enemies.—From a Persian Saying.

There is something finer than to do right against inclination, and that is to have an inclination to do right. There is something nobler than reluctant obedience, and that is joyful obedience. ## Be Careful in Speech.

If in our speech we would need consider how our words will affect those to whom they are spoken—if we would try to hear them with their ears and consider how they accept in their hearts, there would not be much passionate or undisciplined speech; certainly there would be few spiteful words or lives embittered by the words of our lips.—W. G. Spencer.

PREPARING SALAD AND FRUIT

Methods That Are Not New, But Have Successfully Withstood Test of Time.

Escalloped Squash.—Cut the squash into small pieces and boil until tender, but not soft enough to mash. Butter a baking dish and cover the bottom with a layer of squash, over which sprinkle a little salt, a little sugar and a few bits of butter. Keep doing this until the dish is full. On top, in addition to the seasoning, add a little grated nutmeg. Pour in about two-thirds of a cup of milk and bake in a moderate oven. Serve hot.

Egg Plant Salad.—Cut the egg plant in quarter-inch slices, pare, sprinkle with salt and pepper and saute them quickly in hot butter. Drain on cheese cloth; when cold, cut them in dice, sprinkle on them some minced water-cress and cover with a cream salad dressing made by stirring three teaspoons of grated horseradish, three tablespoons of lemon juice, one-half teaspoon of salt and a dash of paprika into one cup of thick whipped cream.

Baked Quinces.—Core and pare eight ripe, juicy quinces. Put them into a buttered baking dish and fill the cavities with sugar. Sprinkle the remains of three-quarters of a cup of sugar over them and add one and a half cups of water. Cover and bake until soft in a moderate oven, basting often. Quinces require a long time for cooking. Serve hot with butter and sugar.

Red and White Pickle.—Select one large or two small heads of cauliflower, break into bits. To this add one-half pint of small onions, two red peppers. Dissolve one-quarter pint of salt in sufficient vinegar to cover vegetables. Let stand over night, drain in morning. Heat one quart of vinegar and two tablespoons of mustard until it boils, put in vegetables, boil 15 minutes, bottle and seal.

SEEK WELL-BALANCED DIET

Of the Utmost Importance to the Health and Welfare of All the Family.

It is the duty of the housewife to furnish a well balanced diet to the members of her family. By taking something from each group of food materials she will be able to supply all of the five food substances—protein, fat, carbohydrates, minerals and water—which are necessary. The correct proportions of each, however, must be determined by the individual requirements and peculiarities. Appetite, age, sex, occupation, climate and season must all be considered when making a well-regulated diet for the normal person.

It should always be remembered that the ideal diet is that combination of foods which, while imposing the least burden on the body, supplies it with exactly sufficient material to meet its wants, and that any disregard of such a standard must inevitably prevent the best development of our powers.

The vegetable foods—peas, beans, lentils and nuts, particularly peanuts—that may in a measure supplant meat should often be found on the table. The peanut paste or butter made from finely-ground nuts is pleasing to the taste and very nutritious. Peanut-butter sandwiches make a wholesome lunch for school children.

Cupboard for Cooked Food.

I have been using for several years a home-made food closet which has proved to be a great convenience, writes a contributor. In warm weather, as I have no ice, I cook often, and place the food, until wanted, in the closet, which is well ventilated and safe from flies and ants. It stands in a cool room with open windows. It is four feet high, five feet long and two feet wide with three shelves. It has four short legs which raise it from the floor about six inches. The legs stand in small pans of water containing a little kerosene. Two doors with panels of fine wire netting occupy the entire front. The food closet is neatly painted and varnished and is both ornamental and useful, not only in summer, but in cool weather find it a safe and handy place to keep cooked food.

Beef Balls.

Cut beef from top of round in strips, and scrape. Season this with salt and form into small balls, using as little pressure as possible. Cook the balls for one minute in a very hot frying pan, shaking the pan constantly to keep them rolling. The little balls will be lightly browned all over, looking like chocolate. To serve them temptingly, pile a few on a pretty plate, in a tiny pyramid, with a sprig or two of parsley, and narrow strips of crisp toast.

Handy Stick.

A smooth, strong stick, about forty inches long, with a notch in one end, is a useful thing to have in the house. With it pictures may be lifted by the wire from their hooks, and replaced without climbing up and down a step ladder.

Apple Float.

Press one quart of nice stewed apples from which all surplus liquid has been drained, through a sieve. Add juice of one lemon and sugar to taste. Beat into it the whipped whites of three eggs. Serve at once with cream.

New Beef Sandwiches.

Cut stale bread very thin, butter slightly. Remove crusts, spread half the bread with seasoned beef well sautéed. Place in sandwich form, adding the sandwiches to the

For Women Who Care

Of course you use an antiseptic in your family and in the care of your own person, and you want the best.

Instead of what you have been using such as liquid or tablet antiseptics or peroxide, won't you please try Paxtine, a concentrated antiseptic powder to be dissolved in water as needed.

Paxtine is more economical, more cleansing, more germicidal and more healing than anything you ever used.

Paxtine
ANTISEPTIC

In the toilet—to cleanse and whiten the teeth, remove tartar and prevent decay. To disinfect the mouth, destroy disease germs, and purify the breath. To keep artificial teeth and bridgework clean and odorless. To remove nicotine from the teeth and purify the breath after smoking. To eradicate perspiration odors by sponge bathing.

As a medicinal agent for local treatment of feminine ills where pelvic catarrh, inflammation and ulceration exist, nothing equals hot douches of Paxtine. For ten years the Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co. has been regularly advising their patients to use it because of its extraordinary cleansing, healing and germicidal power. For this purpose alone Paxtine is worth its weight in gold. Also for nasal catarrh, sore throat, inflamed eyes, cuts and wounds. All druggists, 25 and 50 cents a box. Trial box and testimony of 31 women free on request.

HOUSE AT CROSSROAD

Priscilla Found Lots of Friends at Old Home.

By MARIE R. WHITING.

As the afternoon train wheezed into the station at Prattville, a woman stepped out on the rear platform as if eager to finish her journey. She had barely reached middle age, but the years had not passed by her lightly, and the lines of her countenance indicated a temper not sweetening with the seasons. As if shaking the dust of travel forever from her feet, she stopped briskly to the station door and looked about her.

It was not a pleasing prospect—the low, one-room building, and about it, fields burned a dull brown, while to the south, the road leading to the village shimmered in the summer heat. At the lower end of the platform was a carryall, harnessed to a white horse. The driver, a thin, wiry man in blue overalls, met the newcomer's stare uneasily.

"Be you Miss Baxter?" he asked doubtfully.

"Tain't written on me anywhere, is it?" she returned.

"I dunno but what 'tis written on your face. The Baxters all have a look alike. If you're Fannie Baxter, I'll drive you right down to the crossroads. I came down a-purpose for that."

"Some folks never know their business. Do you think you are here to meet me?" she returned.

"I've been here every day for two weeks. She asked me to. You just make yourself comfortable and I'll hand your trunk over."

"Mind you don't smash what's left of it," she called after him, as she climbed stiffly into the back seat. "I reckon Frances is as good name as Fannie," she said to herself, "and if she don't get around to ride in her own carryall she must expect somebody else will."

As they jogged slowly down the dusty road, Miss Baxter closed her eyes and tried to rest. Her journey half way across the continent had left her nearly exhausted, and she was too weary to try to understand the driver's chatter.

"Will you stop talking nonsense and drive me to a respectable boarding-place?" she asked.

Mr. Slocum threw the reins over the dashboard and turned about with an injured air. "This is a free ride," he said with some dignity. "I'm doing it for her sake, and for her sake I won't take you further'n this house for any amount of money."

"I reckon we've got a weary spell of sitting, then," and Miss Baxter leaned back on the faded cushions, as if prepared to wait the day of judgment.

"You're welcome to it," said Mr. Slocum, making himself comfortable on the front seat.

As the afternoon shadows grew longer, Miss Baxter had plenty of time to survey the house. It seemed to her that she had never seen so pretty a cottage. It surely was a shame to have it idle. To find a place like that for herself had been her dream coming east. If only she dared—but Mr. Slocum's voice interrupted her thoughts.

"Here comes the minister down the road. I know his colt. Suppose we leave this difference to him. If he says stay, why you get out, and if he says drive on, I'll take you wherever you want to go."

"I'm willing," agreed Miss Baxter. "It does seem a pity for a likely place to go to ruin, standing empty."

As the roan came nearer, Miss Baxter sat up very primly. At last, she told herself, her assertion that she had no right to the house would be regarded, but to her surprise the minister answered slowly: "Sister Baxter, your feelings do you credit, but holy people at their death have visions, and she said you'd surely come. She wanted it above all earthly things. The whole village will be glad you've taken the house."

Miss Baxter had never been dishonest but the allurements of the cottage was strong upon her. For a moment she hesitated, then she stopped briskly out of the carryall. "I tell you what I'll do," she said. "I hate to see things going to ruin and I'll live in the house and keep the place up. I'll pay a fair rent to the minister and he can put it in the bank against the day when he thinks I have no right here. As long as I stay, I am to be let alone and no questions asked."

"If you are as honest as that, you must be some like her after all," commented Mr. Slocum, "but ain't it a queer idea about the money?"

"When I make a bargain I mean it, question and all. Does every one in Prattville talk all the time? You can fetch my trunk right in; I'll say good evening to you both," and the two men were left alone, a trifle bewildered by the turn affairs had taken.

Within the house, Miss Baxter went slowly from room to room. Surely she had never hoped for so pleasant a home. At last she sat down by the front window and tried to make her good fortune seem real. She was aroused by a light step on the threshold, and a sweet-faced woman stood in the doorway.

"Don't get up," said the stranger. "I'm Priscilla West, your nearest neighbor. Ben Slocum told me you'd come, and I'm so glad you are in the house."

"You'll find lots of friends ready-made, waiting to give you the welcome for her sake. I brought you over just a little lunch, some biscuits and honey and cold ham and caraway cookies, I hope you like caraway cookies; she always did."

"I thank you kindly for the food. If I seem a little touchy, perhaps my trip has something to do with it."

"Of course it has," returned the pleasant voice of Priscilla West. "Good night."

"Of course it hasn't," commented Miss Baxter to herself, as she went into the house. "There isn't a place in the world where you're welcome for your own sake, and you know it."

With sunset a breeze sprang up from the south and the air grew cooler. How light the biscuits were, and how sweet the honey! Ready-made friends! From the west window Miss Baxter could see a gray wall. She wondered what it enclosed. Perhaps she would go to the brow of the hill and make sure.

As she walked down the lane that entered the churchyard, a little boy rose from the side of a newly-made grave, picked up a crutch and stood looking at her with wide open eyes. Miss Baxter felt vaguely uneasy. "What are you doing here?" she asked.

"I've been planting a sweet briar. She loved the smell of them in the rain. Are you the lady that's going to live in the house?"

"I'm going to stay a spell, if no one turns me out."

"She used to tell me stories. She said you would. Will you?"

Miss Baxter started. She had never told a story to a child in her life. Here was another of the ready-made friends. "I don't know," she said. "Perhaps so. Come over tomorrow and we'll talk it over."

Summer passed into autumn, the autumn brought winter in its train, the air grew sweet with the promise of spring and still Miss Baxter dwelt unmolested in the house by the crossroads. Of the mystery of that life and death so strangely linked with hers, she understood but little. The village folks soon learned that she would neither listen to nor speak of it. Their testimony that the place had never looked so well, and the money, steadily growing in the minister's care, served as balm when her conscience stirred uneasily.

One evening in the long twilight, Miss Baxter climbed the hill to the churchyard to see if the flowers were sprouting on the grave she had grown to look upon as hers. As she rose from handling the moist earth, a woman stood leaning on a neighboring stone, watching her. Miss Baxter took a step backward; a stalk of sweet-briar broke and fell to the ground. Strangers seldom visited Prattville, and the cemetery was a mile and a half from the village. The newcomer wore a bright plaid waist and neat hat, but her shoes and skirt were soiled with mud, and she clung to the stone as if exhausted.

"Are you related to her?" asked Miss Baxter, pointing to the mound at her feet.

"I'm Fannie," answered the stranger with a touch of defiance. I came back to see about the property. I don't suppose she left any for me, and I don't need it, but I came back to see. Did she leave any messages for me?"

"Yes, she left messages, and the house, and friends, ready-made friends. My name is Frances Baxter; I've been keeping things for you. When did you come?"

"Today, on the afternoon train, and I walked around by the back road. No one saw me. When I got to the crossroads you came out of the house and I followed you here. Did she say anything about forgiving me?"

Then it was that a great purpose and desire filled Miss Baxter's soul. If she could comfort and care for this weary sister, if she could see her through to the end of her brief earthly journey, then in very truth, she could claim as partly hers that life that was sleeping just over the brow of the hill.

"Suppose you stay with me a spell and sort of visit. We can say you're my cousin, and both of us belonging to her that's lying yonder makes us some related, I reckon. You'd like it here. It's pretty, slightly place, and summer's coming on. I'm a lonely soul here and you're a lonely soul in the city. We'd kind of be a blessing to each other, and be living more like way folks was intended to live."

"I've been pining for the old place for ten years, but I hadn't the courage to come back, and now it's too late. Many's the time I've got as far as the station to take the train. You don't know what you're asking. I ain't very strong nor very cheerful. Sometimes I have the horrors. Nobody in Prattville would take me in."

Fannie's hat had fallen to the floor, and the lamplight, streaming over her bowed head, seemed to glorify it in a kindly halo of repentance. Miss Baxter bent forward, and gently, with her lips, touched the faded brown hair.

"You ain't looking at it right," she said softly. "It's you that'll be taking me in. I've lived in your house and used your things, and enjoyed your friends. I never had any friends before and it's made a different woman of me. Don't you see you'd be giving a chance to pay back just a little of all I'm owing you and all I'm owing her? Just think how it would please her if you'd stay. She said you'd live in the house, and holy people at their death have visions. Those were the minister's words. Can't you see your way clear to stay with me—Cousin Fannie?"

The bowed head slowly lifted and the lamplight poured its pitying rays on the flushed cheeks and sunken eyes.

"I guess you are right. It would please Rosamond. I'll stay a spell—Cousin Frances." (Copyright, 1912, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

METCHNIKOFF THEORY IS OLD

Curdled and Sour Milk Were Popular as Cures for Allments in Ancient Times.

Literary research has revealed that Prof. Elie Metchnikoff of Paris was not the first advocate of sour milk as a cure for many ills. He has never said he was. An editorial note in the New York Medical Journal says:

"In a very interesting article on the origin of oriental curdled milk,
Dr. N. Moissides of Constantinople, in Janus for July, speaks also of the mention of sour milk in the Old Testament, which Metchnikoff used to fortify his statement that the use of sour milk is one of the great secrets of prolonging life. Dr. Moissides remarks that Metchnikoff has followed the translation of Ebstein on medicine in the Old Testament, but with this translation our author disagrees, for the Septuagint, as well as Osterveld, used the word butter instead of sour milk. Of much more importance than sour milk during the Graeco-Roman and Byzantine times was curdled milk, oxygala, a word mentioned by many old writers, such as Strabo, Plutarch, the elder Pliny, Paul of Eginia, and many others, down to Ptochoprodromos, a Byzantine poet of the twelfth century.

"The word of the old Greeks is still used in Greece, Cyprus and Turkey by modern Greek authors,
while the Turkish word is Yagourte, derived from the verb Yagourmak,
signifying fermented."

PASSING OF THE PUNKAH.

One can hardly imagine the hot countries of the far and the middle east without the punkah, and it is something of a shock to learn from the American consul general at Hongkong that in that colony, at least, the punkah is rapidly giving place to the electric ceiling fan. Few new buildings in Hongkong are fitted with punkahs, but all are wired for electricity with reference to the use of electric fans. According to the consul general, while punkahs have many merits—especially in being easily regulated so as to maintain a gentle breeze—they entail a serious loss of light, do not promote active ventilation, as a fan does, and are hard to keep clean.—Scientific American.

QUICK ACTION.

"That is my business and not yours," remarked a prisoner at Kingston, in reply to a magistrate's question.

"We will now proceed with ours," retorted the chairman, who promptly passed sentence of a month's hard labor.—London Tit-Bits.

STRICTLY BUSINESS.

"Pa, I have accepted the duke. He will cost only a million plunks."

"Cheap enough, my dear. Now, the next step is to get the title examined."

HIS STATUS.

"He is in 'Who's Who,' I believe."
"Yes, but he is much more prominent in 'Here's How!'"—Puck.

ITS PROPER PLACE.

"That man's practice is going to the dogs."

"What's the matter with him?"
"Nothing. He's a veterinarian."

FAIR GAME.

"Why does that doctor look at you so wolfishly?"

"He knows my ax is in his hand."

LAWYERS GOT "THEIRS"

Mrs. Elsie Latham Gets $345
Out of $5,000.

New York, Dec. 26.—The litigation over the will of John C. Latham, a Wall street banker, and founder of the firm of Latham, Alexander and company, has been settled in part through a compromise agreement between Mrs. Elsie Gaylord Latham, the young widow, the city of Hopkinsville, Ky., and the Grace Episcopal church of Hopkinsville, as shown by the filing of a supplemental report in the appraisal of the estate, whereby the city of Hopkin-ville agrees to accept $56,000 in place of the $80,000 legacy under the will and the church agrees to accept $35, 000 in place of the $50,000 legacy.

The estate, according to the appraiser, has been distributed as follows:

To Miss Alice Latham, daughter of the decedent, $201,700; to the widow, $108,618, and to friends and relatives, $169,000. One of the items in the appraisals is for $345, this being the net proceeds of a suit brought by Mrs. Latham to collect $5,000 for damages to her husband's tobacco warehouse by the "night riders" in 1907. She obtained a compromise for the amount, but the fees of the lawyers amounted to $1,654.

SPECIAL SERVICES

At The Ninth Street Christian Church Tomorrow.

One of the greatest speakers in America, Rev. I. N. McCash, L.L.D., of Cincinnati, will be the speaker at the special services at the Ninth Street Christian Church tomorrow.
Dr. McCash has spoken before in Hopkinsville on special occasions and these who heard him then will hail the opportunity to do so again.

The Doctor will address the Recruiters Bible Class in the morning at 9:30; the congregation at 10:45;
and at night at 7 o'clock.

The music of the day will be under the direction of Mr. Robert Wright.
Miss Moore will be at the organ.

Everybody cordially invited to attend these services.

He Couldn't Work Her.

While a Jewel City girl was selling tickets for the picture show, a man called for tickets and pushed in a five-dollar gold piece to pay for them, but the girl shoved it back. The man insisted it was money all right, but the girl informed him that he couldn't work her, and he didn't. He had to go out and borrow a dime. There are plenty of Kansas youngsters who never saw a gold piece.—Kansas City Star.

Errors of Eloquence.

Humane French Burglars.

shooting box of M. Lindet, president of the Paris Law society, at Fosse Mousson and after ransacking the place carefully destroyed traps and snares for animals which they found there. On a wall where the traps had been hanging they scrawled the words: "Be kind to animals or else
we will return."
